

ABSTRACT

A wireless transmitting device includes a computer having a socket disposed in the rear portion, and a wireless LAN device having a USB device for coupling or 05 for plugging to the socket of the computer, without additional electric wires, and for allowing the computer and the wireless LAN device to be easily carried outdoors, and for allowing the computer to be easily coupled to the networks outdoors. The wireless
10 LAN device further includes an antenna for signal receiving and emitting purposes.